The mission of the Cloquet Forestry Center is to connect people and ideas to build understanding of northern forest ecosystems through field-based research, education, and outreach. At CFC, we provide students with intensive field experiences that are essential to professions related to forestry. The center hosts long-term studies that benefit Minnesota's forest lands. Research is designed to improve the management of Minnesota's timber, recreation, wildlife, soil, and water resources on forested lands. We offer a variety of classroom- and field-based learning opportunities to inform natural resource managers and woodland owners about practical applications of relevant research.
